39TH AALS CONFERENCE ON CLINICAL LEGAL EDUCATION

Clinics and Communities:
Exploring Community Engagement
Through Clinical Education

April 30 – May 3, 2016 | Baltimore, MD

CLINICS AND COMMUNITIES: EXPLORING COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT THROUGH CLINICAL EDUCATION

Founding conceptions of clinical legal education situated law school clinics as allies of communities in need. Law students flocked to clinics to engage in lawyering on behalf of people whose needs, while rooted in social and legal structures, might also be remedied by legal process. Whether and how law could effectively support communities and endeavor to redress the harms that community members experienced were central questions in clinical education that continue to require persistent examination.

This conference focuses on the role of clinics in communities and the role of communities in clinics in 2016. Drawing on conversations at the 2014 and 2015 conferences on changes in clinical education, we will look both forward and back to ask how the relationship between clinics and communities has developed as clinical education has evolved and as it continues to evolve. We use the terms “clinics,” “clinical programs,” and “clinical education” with the intention of including in-house clinics and externship programs.

The location of the 2016 conference in Baltimore, Maryland is an appropriate setting for exploring these topics. The death of Freddie Gray, a young African-American man, in April, 2015, from injuries he suffered while in police custody, made Baltimore a center of community action, linking it with other communities (such as Staten Island, Cleveland, Ferguson, Charleston) and a national movement organized around #BlackLivesMatter, also known as the Movement for Black Lives. Baltimore, then, represents a community interacting with law both for better and for worse, and struggling with issues such as poverty, racism, unemployment, inadequate health care, overcriminalization, and poor public education, issues with which many law school clinics have engaged.

In considering the evolving relationship between clinics and communities, we ask:

- What have we learned about community engagement through clinical education?
- What is the relationship between them now?

Related to these overarching questions are many others, a number of which fall into these categories:

1. Partnerships with Communities

How do we define community and community engagement? What communities do clinics and externship programs serve? How should we prioritize? Which clinical program goals do these partnerships advance? What role does social justice play in clinics' community engagement? What forms of community engagement and collaboration have we used? What is our role in these partnerships—supporters, participants, lawyers? How does the choice of role affect the clients we choose and the pedagogies we use? Can we collaborate across programs to serve communities? Can we develop the flexibility to respond to community incidents and needs as they emerge? How do we partner with international communities?

2. Clients and Communities

Can client centeredness include a community focus? Is it required? How can we best respond to the issues affecting our clients and the communities we aim to serve? What program design issues are raised by these questions and how do we address them? What case selection issues are raised by these questions and how do we address them? What institutional issues are raised by these questions and how do we address them?

3. Pedagogies and Communities

As our pedagogical focus has sharpened, how has it affected the relationship of clinics and communities? Have we developed a pedagogy of engagement with communities? What does it entail? Can we further develop it? How does it link to social justice goals and inquiries? What are the trade-offs? What role does scholarship play in addressing these issues?

During the conference, we will explore these and related questions in a variety of formats, including keynote addresses, plenary presentations, concurrent sessions, poster sessions, workshops, and working groups. In keeping with its theme, the conference will also feature a Clinical Law Review symposium, “Reflecting on Rebellious Lawyering at 25,” which commemorates the upcoming 25th anniversary of Gerald López’s seminal book, Rebellious Lawyering: One Chicano’s View of Progressive Law Practice. All conference registrants are welcome to participate in the symposium.

WORKSHOPS

We invite you to sign up for one of the four workshops offered at the conference. You can find the list of workshops, with short descriptions, below.

Workshop sessions will occur during the same time period as Concurrent Sessions. Enrollment is limited; sign up in advance.

Sign up for workshops by pre-registering for the conference and selecting your preferred workshop no later than March 18, 2016. See page 18 for more information. Once the workshop has reached its capacity, it will no longer be available for registration. Attendance at all workshop sessions is expected. If you haven't pre-registered and signed up specifically for the workshop, you will not be admitted to the workshop.

Two of the workshops will meet four times; the remaining two workshops will meet two times each. If you apply for a four-session workshop, you cannot sign up for any other workshops.

I. WORKSHOPS WITH FOUR SESSIONS

Sunday, May 1, 10:45 am

Monday, May 2, 10:45 am & 2 pm

Tuesday, May 3, 8:30 am

Scholarship Support

Michele Estrin Gilman, University of Baltimore School of Law

Jeffrey J. Pokorak, Suffolk University Law School

The Scholarship Support Workshop is designed to support new and emerging scholars in identifying scholarly topics, developing writing strategies, gaining feedback on writing, and obtaining publication. This workshop is a safe space to ask questions, share ideas, and obtain support. There are four sessions: (1) in session one, we consider the advantages clinicians have as scholars, and we brainstorm about ways to overcome writing barriers; (2) in session two, we discuss the nuts and bolts of the presentation and publication processes; (3) in sessions three and four, each attendee shares a scholarly idea and receives feedback in a roundtable format designed to help them refine their thesis and the scope of their project. Attendees do not share written work or drafts. Prior workshop attendees have reported that the workshop motivated them to start and complete their scholarly projects.

(Re-)Designing a Clinic Using Backward Design

Susan D. Bennett, American University, Washington College of Law

Danielle Cover, University of Wyoming College of Law

Carwina Weng, Indiana University Maurer School of Law

Confused by the ABA standards requiring program outcomes? Wondering how your course assessments and learning outcomes will match with those of the law school? This workshop can help. Whether your focus is community lawyering, lawyering skills, ethics, or substantive knowledge, this workshop will help you to design a course that aligns with your learning goals and outcomes, and to situate your course in your school's program outcomes. During the workshop, participants will use backward design, an approach to instructional design and planning pioneered by Grant Wiggins and Jay McTighe, to begin drafting a course of each participant's choosing. By the end of the workshop, participants can expect to have identified the major goals of their clinics, the final grading assessment and rubric of their clinics, and the learning outcomes for their students. Readings will be assigned before the conference. Then, throughout the workshop, participants will receive feedback from colleagues and facilitators on the work they do during the workshop. Participants must commit to attend the entire four-part workshop.

II. WORKSHOPS WITH TWO SESSIONS

Sunday, May 1, 10:45 am

Monday, May 2, 10:45 am

Making Educational Videos

Michele R. Pistone, Villanova University School of Law

Angela K. Upchurch, Southern Illinois University School of Law

This workshop will focus on the creation and use of online educational videos. Materials will be provided to the participants, who will be asked to take part in conference calls/webinars prior to the conference to go over the learning science behind educational videos, the different types of videos, and an overview of the process of creating them. Participants will be asked to bring scripts and images to the workshop. The workshop will focus on scripts and visuals, different methods of creating videos (webcams, screencasting, multimedia, etc.), and various educational uses of videos, including for student feedback. Participants will have the opportunity to be videotaped. By the end of the workshop, participants will have the information they need to make informed choices about using online educational videos and the experience they need to create their own videos.

III. WORKSHOPS WITH TWO SESSIONS

Monday, May 2, 2 pm

Tuesday, May 3, 8:30 am

Training Students in Private Practice Skills as Another Path to Justice

Ann Juergens, Mitchell | Hamline School of Law
Ilene B. Seidman, Suffolk University Law School

In this workshop, participants will learn how to prepare students for the economic realities of the law services market at the same time that they focus on the quality of justice in their communities. The workshop will explore ways that clinicians might amplify their teaching to include skills and values that will enable students to support themselves in small justice-oriented law practices. The first session will examine our ideas of social justice work and generate an inventory of how solo and small firm practice skills are already being taught in law schools, especially in clinics. Small group discussions will identify foundational skills that need to be added to clinical pedagogy if students are to learn to succeed in public interest private practice. In the second session, participants will design and vet a plan for incorporating at least one of the identified skills of private practice into participants' existing clinics. The workshop also will troubleshoot the task of keeping a public interest focus while learning so-called "private" practice skills, and consider the stretch involved in teaching these skills for those of us who have never sustained a private law practice.

“I attended everything and I was happily challenged and engaged.”

CLINICAL LAW REVIEW SYMPOSIUM: REBELLIOUS LAWYERING AT 25

Sunday, May 1, 9 am – 12:15 pm

Since its publication almost 25 years ago, Gerald López's Rebellious Lawyering text (and a group of related works of legal scholarship written during a fertile period of critical thinking and writing on poverty law) has had an abiding impact on lawyering practice and theory. It has inspired generations of lawyers and shaped public interest legal practice. To celebrate the 25th anniversary of Rebellious Lawyering, the Clinical Law Review has invited scholarly articles on the themes of López's seminal work and is hosting a symposium during the conference to invite reflection on the evolution in the text's meaning and the insights it offers to public interest lawyers and clinical educators today. During the symposium, authors will present their ideas and moderated discussions will follow. See the program on page 10 for more information.

In 2016–17, these articles and reflections on the symposium will be published in two volumes of the Clinical Law Review. The Clinical Law Review is a semi-annual peer-edited journal devoted to issues of lawyering theory and clinical legal education. The Review is jointly sponsored by the Association of American Law Schools (AALS), the Clinical Legal Education Association (CLEA), and New York University School of Law.

Judith Areen, AALS Executive Director

Introduction

Phyllis Goldfarb, Chair, Planning Committee for AALS Conference on Clinical Legal Education and The George Washington University Law School

8:55 am – 9:15 am

Clinical Legal Education Historical Overview

Margaret Barry, Vermont Law School

To provide context for the presentations and discussions to follow, the opening session will offer new colleagues an understanding of where clinical education came from, the forces that have influenced its development, and its current role in the training of future lawyers.

9:15 am – 10 am

Plenary I: The Clinical Seminar

Deborah Epstein, Georgetown University Law Center

This session will provide an overview for thinking about how to design the seminar component of a clinical course, emphasizing the importance of being as deliberate in the classroom as we are during supervision to promote student directed learning.

10 am – 10:15 am

Refreshment Break

10:15 am – 11 am

Plenary II: Clinical Supervision

Conrad Johnson, Columbia University School of Law

Elliott S. Milstein, American University, Washington College of Law

This session, from two experienced clinicians, will build understanding of the framework and practices involved in supervision, as presented in their chapter in the book, Transforming the Education of Lawyers: The Theory and Practice of Clinical Pedagogy by Bryant, Milstein, & Shalleck. Using clinical seminar techniques, the presenters will emphasize the elements of supervision that involve the relationship between a particular client matter or client and larger issues of social justice, addressing the contexts that are inherent in each. Through the presentation and exercises, attendees will gain familiarity with supervision techniques that will enable them to use these approaches in conducting supervisions and analyzing their own supervision experiences.

11 am – 11:45 am

Concurrent Sessions: Externships, Scholarship, Faculty Governance, Case Rounds

Externships:

Kendall L. Kerew, Georgia State University College of Law

Inga N. Laurent, Gonzaga University School of Law

The session will highlight and provide a forum for discussion centered on the teaching and continued emergence of externship courses. Presenters and attendees will explore best practices and current issues relating to field supervision, classroom seminars, guided reflection, evolving ABA Standards, and other topics related to externship course design and pedagogy.

Scholarship:

Amna Akbar, The Ohio State University, Michael E. Moritz College of Law

Leigh Goodmark, University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law

The presenters will discuss a range of topics regarding the process of writing and submitting scholarship for publication. This session will be helpful for those attendees trying to reconcile the responsibilities of writing with other clinical and law school obligations.

Faculty Governance:

Bradford Colbert, Mitchell | Hamline School of Law

Laurie S. Kohn, The George Washington University Law School

David Anthony Santacroce, The University of Michigan Law School

This session will provide new clinicians with a framework for better understanding and negotiating the decision-making structures at their law schools. Topics to be considered include the role of internal hierarchies, rules, and processes; common rank and status issues; working at a public vs. private school; and the impact of external stakeholders (e.g., alumni/donors, community stakeholders).

Case Rounds:

Wendy A. Bach, University of Tennessee College of Law

Susan J. Bryant, City University of New York School of Law

This session is designed to review a number of teaching techniques and potential teaching goals that can be met using student-presented case rounds. The presenters will suggest different frameworks for designing and conducting case rounds to accomplish different educational goals.

11:45 am – 12:30 pm

Concurrent Sessions: Externships, Scholarship, Faculty Governance, Case Rounds

(repeat of 11 am sessions)

“I thought the conference was terrific!
I got a lot out of everything I went to and met some wonderful people.
This conference inspired me to be a better clinician and to become more grounded in the practice.”

Phyllis Goldfarb, Chair, Planning Committee for AALS Conference on Clinical Legal Education and The George Washington University Law School

2 pm – 4 pm
Opening Keynote
Gerald López, University of California, Los Angeles School of Law

Plenary Session: Rebellious Lawyering and Clinical Legal Education

Patience A. Crowder, University of Denver Sturm College of Law
Ramzi Kassem, City University of New York School of Law
Margaret L. Satterthwaite, New York University School of Law

Moderator: Ascanio Piomelli, University of California, Hastings College of the Law

Immediately following Gerald López's keynote address, presenters from a diverse array of clinical programs work to apply the tools and concepts of Rebellious Lawyering concretely to clinical pedagogy. The plenary addresses whether and how the ideas that animate Rebellious Lawyering might also operate through lawyering by clinical programs, and whether identifying these connections adds value to those programs and to the clients and students they serve.

Moderator: Renee M. Hutchins, University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law

This plenary panel, consisting of clinicians and community advocates, will discuss the latest developments in the movement for racial justice and various ways that clinical programs can engage with it. Using an interactive format, panelists will demonstrate and share lessons learned, collective wisdom, and best practices for working with community organizations in challenging multiple issues of structural inequality such as those involving race in criminal justice, housing, employment, education, and equitable development. Panelists will also address critical pedagogical questions surrounding the engagement of students inside and outside the classroom as allies of community-led movements.

Plenary Session: Reflections and Lessons

Facilitators:

Carolyn B. Grose, Mitchell | Hamline School of Law
Margaret E. Johnson, University of Baltimore School of Law

During this final session, we will reflect on the preceding three days with an eye toward identifying what we have learned and what comes next. This session will guide participants to focus on what they will bring back to their law schools and communities and how we can productively follow up on what we've learned to further deepen our understanding and our practice.

Registration

HOW DO I REGISTER?

You can register for the Conference on Clinical Legal Education by one of the methods listed below. If you find you are unable to register online then you may not yet be listed in the AALS database. In that case, please contact your dean's office before you attempt to register to have yourself added to the AALS Law School roster. Once added you should be able access your AALS account and register online. If you need assistance with this process, contact dltsupport@aals.org.

ONLINE

Visit aals.org/clinical2016 to access the online registration system for both individual and group registration for the conference. You can pay the registration fee online by using American Express, Visa or MasterCard.

FAX OR MAIL

If you would like to use a paper form please complete and return to AALS with payment of the registration fee. AALS accepts American Express, Visa, MasterCard, or checks (made payable to AALS). You may fax the form to AALS at (202) 872-1829. If paying by check please mail to AALS at 1614 20th Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20009-1001. Note that, in accordance with payment Card Industry Association standards, registration by email is no longer available as of July 1, 2015.

Type of Registration

Fee

Faculty of Member and Fee-Paid Schools	$455
Faculty of Non Fee-Paid Law Schools	$505
Faculty of International Law Schools	$455

ON-SITE REGISTRATION

For all registrations received after April 13, 2016 there is an additional on-site charge of $50. Plan to register on-site if your paper registration form cannot arrive at AALS by the April 13 deadline. AALS accepts cash, personal or school checks, American Express, MasterCard, and Visa on-site at the conference.

CONFIRMATION

AALS automatically sends two email confirmations shortly after submission of your paid registration. Confirmations should be received within 24 hours for online and faxed paper registrations, and within two weeks for mailed check payments. If you have not received a response within that time frame please first check your spam folder. Then, contact AALS registration staff at registration@aals.org to verify that your registration has been received and successfully processed.

CANCELLATION POLICY

Registration fees will be refunded in full for written cancellation requests received by April 13, 2016 at registration@aals.org. A refund of all registration fees, less a $50 processing fee, will be given for cancellation requests received April 14 through April 21. No refunds will be given for cancellations received after April 21. Cancellation requests can also be made by mail to: AALS Registration, c/o Erick Brown, 1614 20th St. NW, Washington, DC 20009.

THINGS TO DO

The Inner Harbor

The Baltimore Marriott Waterfront is located in Baltimore's Inner Harbor, a historic seaport, tourist attraction, and landmark of the city of Baltimore, Maryland. It was described by the Urban Land Institute in 2009 as "the model for post-industrial waterfront redevelopment around the world." The Inner Harbor is located at the mouth of Jones Falls, creating the wide and short northwest branch of the Patapsco River. The district includes any water west of a line drawn between the foot of President Street and the American Visionary Art Museum.

The name "Inner Harbor" is used not just for the water but for the surrounding area of the city, with approximate street boundaries of President Street to the east, Lombard Street to the north, Greene Street to the west, and Key Highway on the south. The harbor is within walking distance of Camden Yards and M&T Bank Stadium. A water taxi connects passengers to Fells Point, Canton, and Fort McHenry.

The National Aquarium

A nonprofit public aquarium, the National Aquarium is located at 501 E Pratt Street in the Inner Harbor, and is about a 10-minute walk from the hotel. The National Aquarium houses several exhibits including the Upland Tropical Rain Forest, a multiple-story Atlantic Coral Reef, and an open ocean shark tank. Ticket prices vary from $24.95 - $39.95, and discounts are offered for children ages 3-11 and adults over the age of 65.

Maryland Science Center - 601 Light Street

It includes three levels of exhibits, a planetarium, and an observatory. It was one of the original structures that drove the revitalization of the Baltimore Inner Harbor from its industrial roots to a thriving downtown destination. It is an exciting place to visit, with hands-on exhibits and spectacular displays about the wonderful world of science and technology. Visit www.mdsci.org.

Fell's Point

A historic waterfront neighborhood, Fell's Point is a mere 10-minute walk from the Baltimore Marriott Waterfront. Fell's Point, established in 1763, is a vibrant community with many antique stores, restaurants, and coffee houses to explore.

Fell's Point also houses the famous Broadway Market, located at 1640 Aliceanna Street. A two-building, 12,000-square foot facility, the Broadway Market has vendors selling upscale sweet treats alongside stalls of meat and produce, as well as lunch counters serving filling fare at bargain prices.

The Maryland Zoo

Founded in 1876, The Maryland Zoo in Baltimore is the third oldest zoo in the United States and is internationally known for its conservation and research contributions. The Zoo is accredited by the Association of Zoos & Aquariums (AZA), assuring excellent care for animals, a great experience for visitors and a better future for all living things. The Zoo is open daily from 10 a.m. – 4 p.m., and is situated on more than 160 acres in Druid Hill Park, about 10 minutes north of Baltimore's Inner Harbor.

Fort McHenry

Fort McHenry is a coastal star-shaped fort best known for its role in the War of 1812, when it successfully defended Baltimore Harbor from an attack by the British navy in Chesapeake Bay and inspired Francis Scott Key to pen "The-Star Spangled Banner." Fort McHenry is located at 2400 East Fort Avenue, and is about a 24-minute drive from the Baltimore Marriott Waterfront. It is open from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. each day, and has an entrance fee of $10 for adults 16 years of age and older; children 15 and younger are free.

Pier Six Pavilion

Just steps away from the Baltimore Marriott Waterfront, the waterfront Pier Six Pavilion is a music venue at 731 Eastern Avenue. The venue opened in 1981 and has featured a wide variety of music acts, ranging from rock to jazz. Check www.piersixpavilion.com for a schedule of performances.

The Baltimore Orioles

Oriole Park at Camden Yards is within walking distance from the hotel. The O's are home during the conference, with games each day. Visit baltimore.orioles.mlb.com/schedule.
